

Mr Armstrong's Wildlife Illustration Challenge

A lot of what we know about living things is because people have carefully drawn pictures of what they have observed and made notes to help others learn about them. Many wildlife artists and people who study nature produce lovely drawings in their sketchbooks.

Your challenge is to create an annotated wildlife illustration about a wild animal or plant of your choice. It should include one or more beautiful picture and notes to describe features, such as the animal's or plant's appearance.

You might observe the living thing in the wild or use pictures and information from books, videos or websites to help.

Please send any finished fact-cards to parmstrong.airyhill@yeat.co.uk. I would love to see them!
